Whirlybird Brings Santa Claus to City

Santa's Helicopter Comes in for Landing

Santa Claus came to town Saturday morning—right on the dot at 10 o'clock.

A very modern Santa, he is too, traveling in his helicopter like a big whirring iron bird instead of his sleigh drawn by reindeer.

Hundreds of youngsters, bundled up against the cold, lined both sides of Main St. between Court and Market Sts. With them were hundreds of mothers and fathers, who had taken the morning off to give their children, beaming with excitement and expectancy, a preview of the Christmas season.

Santa's helicopter, coming in from the north, circled the business section once in the bright sunshine of the still, crisp morning, and then settled slowly and gently down on the street in front of the west steps to the Courthouse.

AS SANTA swung around above the crowd, bright, rosy-cheeked faces were turned up to watch. For many, this was the first close-up glimpse of a helicopter, Santa's modern conveyance, and they were both curious and happy.

When he was first sighted in the sky, a collective "Here he comes!" went up from the crowd in mixture of childish and adult voices. Then there was silence, as everyone watched, tense with anticipation.

No sooner had the helicopter alighted on the street than roly-poly Santa, in his white-trimmed bright red suit and with his long white beard covering his chest, jumped out, ducked under the still-whirling propellers and ran, with hands outstretched, to greet the youngsters lining the street.

SOME OF the smaller kiddies clung tightly to their parents, but watched with wide-eyed shy wonderment as Santa moved along. Others, a little braver and wiser about the story of Santa, awaited his coming eagerly.

His visit did not last long, but it was long enough to open the Christmas season. Before he left, Santa gave the children a treat of hard mixed candy, along with his cheery greeting and a big smile.

Cold and wind had interfered with getting up all the Christmas decorations, but the stores, with their gaily wrapped gift packages, their counters and shelves stacked with gift-type merchandise, and their brightly decorated show windows gave the city the festive atmosphere of the Yuletide.

Most of the stores will be open from 9 a. m. until 9 p. m. every Friday and Saturday from now until Christmas. The majority of them also will remain open until 9 p. m. every day of the last week before Christmas, but will close at 5 p. m. Christmas Eve.

The store hours were agreed on by the Retail Merchants committee of the Chamber of Commerce about two weeks ago to help the people of the community get their Christmas shopping done early.

Although the weather interfered with getting the strands of greenery with their vari-colored lights strung over Court St. and the fastening the evergreen trees on the light standards on Main and Fayette Sts. between Market and East Sts., all the decorations probably will be up next week—barring further weather trouble.

14 Americans Feared Among 34 Killed in French Crash

PARIS (AP)—A New York-bound Italian airliner fell in flames on a tiny French village today, killing 34 of the 36 persons aboard.

The other two persons aboard the plane, a man and a woman, were hospitalized. A youth sleeping in a home struck by the falling plane was reported injured seriously.

At least 14 Americans were reported aboard the plane. Guido Cantelli, noted Italian orchestra conductor, also was on the passenger list.

The four-engine DC6B had just taken off from Paris' Orly Airfield, its first stop on the flight to Rome. It carried a full load of fuel. Suddenly it pitched downward toward the village of Paray Vieille Poste, about two miles beyond the airport runway.

The airliner first grazed a two-story building. Then it plunged burning into a residence.

Spewing flames destroyed another small building nearby.

The plane was smashed almost beyond recognition.

Towering columns of smoke and flame belched high above the village in the early morning darkness as the craft's 5,000 gallons of gasoline burst into fire.

As daylight broke over the smoldering wreckage, French and Italian investigators began the arduous task of attempting to identify the blackened bodies and fix the cause of the mishap.

Spokesmen for the airline in New York listed the following persons as American citizens aboard the plane:

Elaine Banfi; Marjorie Paris of San Francisco, a United Airlines tour consultant; Betty Green, vice president of the Independent Retailers' Assn., New York City; Roy Cox.

Nicholas De Leo; Toni De Leo; Mildred Kaldor, identified as the operator of a New York City public relations firm.

Carol Shetz; Vivian Shetz; Olga Merrina; Sarah Merrina; Antonietta Merrina; the Rev. Pietro Brecchi, and Gilberto Splendido.

The spokesman said no other hometowns or other identification were available.

Ex-Hungary Premier Said Kidnaped by Soviet Cops

New Pressure Being Put on Britain, France

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—Behind-the-scenes pressure mounted today to get Britain and France to pinpoint a withdrawal of their armed forces from Egypt. It came as the U. N. General Assembly called a special weekend meeting on the thorny Suez invasion issue.

The Assembly prepared to act on a resolution by 21 Asian-African nations for an immediate pullout from Egypt by the two Western powers and Israel. Many delegates appeared uncertain how they would vote. The U. S. said it would back it.

The uncertainty apparently resulted from reports that Canada and other commonwealth nations had urged Britain and France to give a time limit for withdrawing, thus avoiding the need for a resolution.

British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd told the Assembly flatly Friday Britain would keep forces at Port Said at the North end of the Suez Canal until London felt the U. N. police force could effectively carry out its job.

British officials at Port Said reported the already promised withdrawal of one battalion of British troops would begin Monday.

ANNOUNCEMENT of the time for the first British withdrawal came after Gen. Sir Charles Keightley, over-all commander of the British-French forces in Egypt, flew to Port Said from Cyprus. He reported:

"Our withdrawal will be related to the United Nations buildup; as fast as the U. N. troops arrive, the British and French will get out."

France has reported that about one-third of her forces have been pulled out of Egypt. Israel said she has pulled back to some degree on all Egyptian fronts. Neither gave details.

Britain's refusal to agree to Assembly demands for immediate withdrawal touched off an angry rejoinder from the Russians.

Mother Questioned About Poisonings

HAGERSTOWN, Md. (AP)—A young mother who had been questioned about the arsenic deaths of her husband and two young sons was reported in fair condition today after herself becoming a victim of poisoning.

Mrs. Helen Elizabeth Kidwell lay in the same Washington County Hospital where her husband and nine children were admitted last week. One of the seven surviving youngsters, ranging in age up to 13, was listed as in serious condition.

The mother was admitted Thursday night. During a session of police questioning about the poisonings, she had complained about swelling in her hands.

William S. Kidwell, the 42-year-old father, died Thursday morning, one week after the deaths of Thomas Kidwell, 1, and Charles Kidwell, 2.

Investigators said arsenic had been found in the family's well water at the house it rented at nearby Kearneyville, W. Va.

Lyons Freed By Cincy Jury

Meter Reader Said Innocent in Slaying

CINCINNATI (AP)—Robert V. Lyons, freed of a first degree murder charge in the knifing death of a Cincinnati socialist, says he hopes police find the "real murderer."

A jury of eight men and four women at 11:17 p. m. Friday agreed on full acquittal.

Lyons, 44, former city water meter reader, maintained that police forced him through threats and promises to confess the knife-slaying of Mrs. Audrey Evers Pugh in her exclusive Hyde Park home last April 11.

The defendant bowed and shook when the verdict was read. Spectators loosed a roar in Judge Carson Hoy's courtroom.

Lyons said, "Like I said before, I hope they get the real murderer of Mrs. Pugh" because "thereby it would take any doubt out of all the people's minds."

William F. Hopkins, defense attorney, said of the verdict, "I am utterly humble."

Hamilton County Prosecutor C. Watson Hoyer said, "The jury has the final word in these matters. The state has no choice other than to accept its decision."

The jury got the case at 4:14 p. m. After nearly two hours at dinner, the panel continued deliberations.

THE VERDICT came 16 minutes after the jury asked Judge Hoy to repeat his instructions on the possible verdicts, from first degree murder to acquittal.

A juror said two panel members had considered first degree manslaughter at that time, but voted (Please Turn to Page Eight)

Slaying of 2 Akron Clerks Laid to Killer Now On Parole

AKRON (AP)—A customer walked into the County Line Grocery at nearby Uniontown Friday night and found the bodies of two clerks lying on the floor. Both had been shot in the back and chest.

Police shortly after intensified their search for 42-year-old Leroy Keith, sought in the slaying of an Akron executive.

There were no witnesses to the shooting of Raymond Amodio, 30, of Canal Fulton, son of the grocery store's owner, and Paul Cain, 35, of Cuyahoga Falls, a part-time employee. No one heard the shots.

But 25 minutes after discovery of the double shooting, Stark County sheriff's deputies said an auto sped west flares around an accident scene south of Canton.

Sgt. V. J. Smith of the Akron police said the license number of the car tallied with that of an auto believed used by Keith.

Stark County deputies said the bullets which killed the two men were of the same caliber as the one which killed Coburn E. Von Gunte 49, last Wednesday in Akron. Von Gunte, an expeditor for an Akron machine and engineering firm, was shot as he sat in his parked car.

Keith, from Youngstown, was paroled last summer from Ohio Penitentiary after serving a sentence for a 1954 slaying. Akron Detective Chief Carroll O'Rourke said a 16-year-old boy picked up for questioning had told police Keith wanted Von Gunte's car for use in a holdup.

Stark County deputies said money scattered on the floor of the grocery indicated the robber had

Snow Removal Is Major Job

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Workers labored in a giant snow removal job in the storm-swept areas in the eastern Great Lakes region today.

Biting cold and snow squalls hampered the work in western New York. However, only light flurries were reported in most other areas of the storm belt.

Army tanks, bulldozers and snow plows were passed into service in removing the tons of snow from highways and streets and restoring transportation and business to normal operation.

The cold weather spread across the snow belt, which stretched across the northeastern corner of Ohio, the northwestern section of Pennsylvania on eastward into upstate New York.

Trains and bus service was not operating on schedule in many cities. Thousands of cars remained stranded on snow-clogged highways. Many communities were isolated. In western New York, at least four deaths were attributed to the storm.

DRIFTS OF 10 feet were reported in western New York, which was hit by the storm which swept in off Lake Erie and Onondago. A blizzard was reported moving south toward the Mohawk Valley today. Up to 20 inches of snow was reported and temperatures were below zero in some areas.

Erie, Pa., one of the hardest hit cities with 33 inches of snow, continued in a state of emergency. Some 500 National Guard troops joined in the cleanup operations in the lakeport city of 130,000.

Opening two main Buffalo-Cleveland highways, routes 5 and 20, was a job undertaken by highway crews of Pennsylvania, Ohio and New York. All motor-

One of the towns isolated, West Springfield, Pa., got food supplies dropped from two helicopters flown from Pittsburgh. More drops were planned today if roads remained unopened into the village of 1,500 west of Erie.

Springville, N. Y., a village of 4,000 some 30 miles south of Buffalo, also was snowbound.

Mercury Sinks To 4 Degrees

More Cold Weather Expected on Sunday

A new cold front moving in from the Northwest sent the mercury plummeting to a frigid 4 above zero in Washington C. H. early Saturday.

The reading matched the lowest temperature recorded here last winter—the 4 above registered on Dec. 16, 1955. Coldest temperature of the last two years was a 4-below-zero reading on Feb. 13, 1955, according to Coyt A. Stookey, official weather observer in Washington C. H.

Stookey's official thermometer is at the rear of his residence, 134 E. Ohio Ave.

A slight warming trend is expected Saturday afternoon, but more wintry weather is forecast for Sunday when additional snow flurries are probably.

MEANWHILE main highways in Fayette County were clear of snow which fell Friday morning, although some city streets and many rural roads were treacherous.

City police investigated another weather-caused accident Friday night when a car driven by William T. Shepard, 17, Route 3, skidded on the icy surface of Broadway near Sycamore St. at 8:30 p. m. and crashed into a car owned by James B. Witherspoon, which was parked at the curb. Both cars were extensively damaged.

The police report says Shepard admitted he was "playing on the ice" when the mishap occurred.

Low-Flying Plane Clips Duck Hunter

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—Edward R. Baird, a Norfolk attorney, was injured seriously while duck hunting Friday when he was struck by a low-flying plane.

Princess Ann County authorities quoted a nephew, Edward B. Segar, 22, as saying he was trying to land a note, enclosed in a cup, into the duck blind occupied by Baird and his son, Edward Jr.

Baird suffered a fractured skull and a mutilated left hand as a result of being struck by a wing tip. Hospital attendants listed his condition as satisfactory.

Americans Opening Hearts To Aid Hungarian Refugees

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Americans are opening their hearts and hearths to Hungarian refugees.

Rich and poor have offered money, food, clothing and homes for the frightened victims of Soviet terror in Hungary.

Federal, state and city government agencies are lending a hand. Churches, schools and colleges have been quick with pledges.

The first refugees— weary men, women and children—landed at McGuire Air Force Base in New Jersey last Wednesday. Several hundred more arrived in planes there and at Milwaukee later.

Two more plane loads are due at McGuire today.

The refugees are the vanguard of 5,000 authorized by President Eisenhower to enter the United States. Even more may follow.

Meanwhile, the offers of aid are growing into a flood.

The American Red Cross says it has allocated more than $250,000 for relief of Hungarians in their revolt-torn homeland, in refugee camps in Austria and in the refugee reception center at Camp Kilmer, N. J.

The American Friends Service Committee in Philadelphia set a goal of $100,000 for its Hungarian Relief Fund.

The 73 refugees who won a warm welcome in Milwaukee Friday were assured of homes and jobs before they set foot in American soil. "More than enough" sponsors in Wisconsin offered to meet refugee needs.

In Chicago religious organizations applied to bring five refugee families to that area.

The governors of Kansas, California and Utah have proclaimed "Hungary Day" next Sunday.

Meanwhile, Sen. William E. Jenner (R-Ind.) said that the "honor of the United States will be sullied if we are satisfied to meet the Soviet attack on Hungary with pompous words and pious social work."

He said that he is "shocked" that the United States did not take stronger action against Soviet intervention in the Hungarian Revolution.

Nagy Feared Forced To Go To Romania

VIENNA (AP)—Promised safety by the puppet Hungarian regime, former Premier Imre Nagy left his refuge in Budapest's Yugoslav Embassy two days ago but apparently fell into the hands of Russian security police.

The action threatened to bring another explosion inside revolt-shattered Hungary and send repercussions through the Communist bloc of nations.

Today, the Red puppets were not discussing the Nagy case. Instead, they accused the United States of operating a secret radio transmitter in its Budapest legation.

The government of Premier Janos Kadar, who replaced Nagy at Soviet order, protested to U. S. minister Edward T. Walleis that the alleged radio transmitter violated "Hungarian sovereignty."

If there is a transmitter in the American legation it has been in stalled in the last two weeks. The legation had no direct communication with the outside world in the week following the Russian attack, when American correspondents also took refuge there.

WAILES AND a handful of American diplomats remained in the legation after the correspondents were allowed to leave Hungary.

Yugoslavia charged Nagy and 51 companions were kidnaped in betrayal of a promise to let them return safely to their homes.

The official Budapest Radio and the Soviet News agency Tass said Nagy and his followers went of their own free will to neighboring Romania, a tightly locked Soviet satellite many Hungarians fear is the first step to Siberia.

Budapest Radio said Nagy and his party had "expressed a desire (Please Turn to Page Eight)

Federal Court Order Eyed in Dock Strike

WASHINGTON (AP)—The federal government moves into court today to end the crippling, nine-day Atlantic and Gulf Coast waterfront strike.

Operating under the complicated national emergency provisions of the Taft-Hartley Law, Justice Department lawyers awaited only formal instructions to seek in New York Federal District Court an order ending the walkout for 80 days.

The battery of government attorneys and labor relations experts working on the case were aiming to get the struck ports back working again Monday. The striking International Longshoremen's Assn. said it would comply with the court's order.

However, Louis Waldman, I.L.A. attorney, said he planned to be in court when government attorneys arrive, and to enter objections to an injunction any broader "than should be."

The walkout has idled 60,000 longshoremen in East and Gulf Coast ports, tied up some 200 ships and caused a tremendous pileup of cargo. The railroads have put an embargo on further freight movement to the struck port areas until the strike is ended. The strike has cost an estimated $20 million a day.

Nagy Feared Forced To Go To Romania

VIENNA (AP)—Promised safety by the puppet Hungarian regime, former Premier Imre Nagy left his refuge in Budapest's Yugoslav Embassy two days ago but apparently fell into the hands of Russian security police.

The action threatened to bring another explosion inside revolt-shattered Hungary and send repercussions through the Communist bloc of nations.

Today, the Red puppets were not discussing the Nagy case. Instead, they accused the United States of operating a secret radio transmitter in its Budapest legation.

The government of Premier Janos Kadar, who replaced Nagy at Soviet order, protested to U. S. minister Edward T. Wiles that the alleged radio transmitter violated "Hungarian sovereignty."

If there is a transmitter in the American legation it has been in stalled in the last two weeks. The legation had no direct communication with the outside world in the week following the Russian attack, when American correspondents also took refuge there.

WAILES and a handful of American diplomats remained in the legation after the correspondents were allowed to leave Hungary.

Yugoslavia charged Nagy and 51 companions were kidnapped in betrayal of a promise to let them return safely to their homes.

The official Budapest Radio and the Soviet News agency Tass said Nagy and his followers went of their own free will to neighboring Romania, a tightly locked Soviet satellite many Hungarians fear is the first step to Siberia.

Budapest Radio said Nagy and his party had "expressed a desire (Please Turn to Page Eight)

WASHINGTON (AP)—The federal government moves into court today to end the crippling, nine-day Atlantic and Gulf Coast waterfront strike.

Operating under the complicated national emergency provisions of the Taft-Hartley Law, Justice Department lawyers awaited only formal instructions to seek in New York Federal District Court an order ending the walkout for 80 days.

The battery of government attorneys and labor relations experts working on the case were aiming to get the struck ports back working again Monday. The striking International Longshoremen's Assn. said it would comply with the court's order.

However, Louis Waldman, I.L.A. attorney, said he planned to be in court when government attorneys arrive, and to enter objections to an injunction any broader "than should be."

The walkout has idled 60,000 longshoremen in East and Gulf Coast ports, tied up some 200 ships and caused a tremendous pileup of cargo. The railroads have put an embargo on further freight movement to the struck port areas until the strike is ended. The strike has cost an estimated $20 million a day.

Farm Bureau's State Session Opens Sunday

COLUMBUS — The farm program — for the first time in many years — will take a back seat at the annual convention of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation.

Official delegates of the farm organization will hold sessions to set policy during the three-day meeting starting Sunday, but will probably bypass farm program as an issue of the day.

D. R. Stanfield, executive secretary of the OFBF, said that feeling among farm people is to "leave the Soil Bank Plan alone. Give it a chance to work."

However, delegates are likely to renew their assault on the nation's wheat allotment program, charging that in spite of a tremendous surplus in wheat, there is actually a shortage of the type wheat (soft red winter) grown in Ohio. Therefore, Ohio wheat producers should get a better allotment break from the government, the OFBF maintains.

MOST of the farm organization's major decisions this year will be made with an eye toward the next session of the Ohio General Assembly. Delegates will decide the organization's stand on proposed state milk control and will work out policy on ditch drainage and water rights. The delegates are expected to oppose any increase in real estate taxes in Ohio.

Nationally, the biggest question to be settled is federal aid to education. Traditionally, OFBF has opposed it, but some sentiment has been expressed to permit federal aid for school construction.

The convention will open Sunday evening at the new Veterans Memorial Building here with special church music and an address by Rev. Russell Hoy, farm writer and pastor of the Canal Lewisville (Ohio) Methodist Church.

FARM BUREAU women will get together Monday morning for a "brunch". Mrs. T. Neil Jones, Clearwater, Fla., United Nation's observer and world traveler, will address the group.

State Sen. Charles Mosher, of Oberlin, will discuss issues to come before the Ohio General Assembly in January at a session of the Farm Bureau's farmer-legislative spokesmen Monday morning.

Discussion of the proposed state milk control bill will feature the dairy commodity session Monday forenoon, while grain producers will discuss the corn referendum and Soil Bank program at the field crops session. Livestock producers will talk meat promotion at their session.

President Charles B. Shuman of the American Farm Bureau Federation will make his first appearance before an OFBF convention Monday afternoon. The program will also feature OFBF's annual Talent Find, youth amateur contest. Winning act will get an expense-free trip to Miami for the American Farm Bureau convention in Miami.

IN ADDITION to providing a lion's share of the entertainment for the convention, Ohio Farm Bureau youth will hold their sessions Sunday and Monday. Herbert E. Evans, general manager, Peoples Broadcasting Corp., will be featured speaker.

Drawing card for the convention is "When Neighbors Meet", a pageant featuring nearly 1,000 members of the organization's Advisory Council discussion groups. The pageant will be held Monday evening at Veterans Memorial.

Delegates will move into action Tuesday, setting organization policy for 1957. In addition, the delegates will elect eight to the farm organization's state board of trustees.

Woman's 'Vile' Language Scorned in Court Opinion

WASHINGTON — The U. S. Court of Appeals has ruled a worker can forfeit employment rights under the Taft-Hartley Act by using language to fellow workers that is disruptive of industrial peace.

The decision backed up refusal by the National Labor Relations Board to order Virgie Marshall reinstated in a job with Nutone, Inc., a Cincinnati manufacturing concern.

She was among workers laid off by the company due to economic conditions during an organization campaign by the United Steel Workers of America in the spring of 1953.

Judge E. Barrett Prettyman, speaking for himself and Judges Wilbur K. Miller and Walter M. Bastian, said Virgie, a pro-union advocate, "possessed an unusual talent for vivid oral expression," and directed this talent to fellow workers outside the plant.

An NLRB examiner said witnesses attributed to Virgie "vile and obscene statements, as well as cursing and profanity."

"Reference to the record indicate that his description was palid," Prettyman commented.

The examiner held there are bounds of language beyond which an employee may not go and still retain his or her right to reinstatement. The board agreed with the examiner.

In another phase of the case, the court held Nutone was guilty of an unfair labor practice when it prohibited its employees from distributing organizational literature on company property but itself distributed eight pieces of anti-union literature.

The ruling that the company was guilty of an unfair labor practice overturned a finding by the NLRB.

The steelworkers lost the election in the Nutone plant. Subsequently, an unaffiliated union was formed in the plant.

Every time I stop in the little village of Yatesville, on Route 38 in Paint Township, I think of that old, sentimental poem in one of the McGuffey Readers, "Some Forty Years Ago." The opening line of it is "I wandered to the village, Tom" and another line is, "But few were left to greet me, Tom," each verse ending with "some forty years ago."

In the Yatesville community where I spent many years of my early life, the only ones left there of the great number of people I knew are Mr. and Mrs. Clark Durlinger, Mr. and Mrs. William M. Looker, Howard Looker, Eben Thomas, Mrs. Maude Gordon Groves, Mrs. Mayme Roush Johnson and Mrs. Madeline Smith Whiteside.

I'm moved away, but the most of them are no longer living.

Among those whom I recall, with members of their families, who resided in the community, were: Isaac Roush, Solomon, Luther and Perry Stuthard, Miles Bland, William Bland, Nelson Mitchell, William Wilson, A. Sometime soon I want to give you the fascinating story of the former Coil Camp Ground on the Palmer Rd., and the religious services held there which frequently attracted several thousands of persons in the horse and buggy days.

I am seeking old photographs to use in connection with the Coil Camp Grounds and the meetings, and will appreciate use of any available, which I would like to have without delay.

DENIZENS OF THE DARK

I know that a great many Fayette countians have never heard a hoot or horned owl give its weird, nerve-tingling calls in the late hours of the night.

But until some 50 years ago these great horned owls (so called by the feathers of their ears sticking up like horns) made the nights more or less hideous to timid persons, and particularly those who were caught in the deep woods late in the night, walking or riding horseback.

There is something really blood-chilling about those sudden calls of "who! who! who! who!" as they are sent ringing through the stillness of the night, and they can be heard a mile or more away.

Invariably the calls are in series of six. Usually the one call is answered by another if there is another owl within hearing distance.

However before the forests were cleared out to a large extent these big, nocturnal birds, with a wing spread of four feet or more, were so abundant that their loud calls were heard on all sides throughout the night.

Early settlers were literally lulled to sleep by the chorus of the hooting owls, as they called back and forth to their mates and to others of their kind.

I have not heard a hoot owl in Fayette County for 30 years, but I understand they are still heard occasionally along Paint Creek below Rock Mills.

The last one I saw in Ohio flew across the highway at low level, late on evening, in southern Clinton County where there was dense woods on each side of the road.

The last one I saw killed was on the William Selsor farm in Paint Township, where as a boy, I saw one's head partly showing above the rim of a hollow elm snag some 30 feet in height.

My brother obtained his shotgun, stood back with gun poised, and when I struck the base of the snag with a club, the big fellow hopped out and took wing, falling at my feet when the charge of shot struck him.

In those days owls were shot wherever found by reason of raids on chickens and even small pigs.

OIL WELL DATED

On Oct. 29, in this column, I carried a story about the oil and gas well, the first one drilled in Fayette County, which was on the Lewis Clark Coffman property, now owned by Loren Hynes, on Sycamore St., opposite the Coffman Stair Co. plant.

From available material at that time I placed the time of drilling at upward of 75 years ago.

The log kept by Carl Baer, formerly head of The Washington Ice Co. when a well was drilled on the Ice Co. property in 1904, refers to the Coffman well as having been drilled in 1886, or 18 years before the well was drilled for gas and oil on the Ice Co. property.

Reference is made to finding gas and a trace of oil at about the same depth as that found in the well drilled on the Ice Co. property. The Coffman well was drilled about 1,800 feet.

District Merger Tax Ruling Given

COLUMBUS — Atty. Gen. C. William O'Neill has ruled that when a merger of taxing districts causes minimum levies to exceed the 10-mill limitation, the budget commission must reduce those levies proportionately to bring their aggregate within the constitutional limitation.

In another opinion, O'Neill ruled that when a merger of two school districts creates a new district, all tax levies on property in the former districts shall be paid to the new district.

It's shot both foxes when they were not over 50 feet away, and in doing it, does not figure that he outsmarted the foxes.

"The boys were driving them my way and I was hidden in some weeds, so I shot them before they ran over me," Homer explains.

The foxes were two of the largest killed in the county in recent years.

Dairy Products Easy To Keep

COLUMBUS — Homemakers now have the jump on spoilage in dairy products, says Frank Koval, Ohio State University extension specialists in dairy technology.

"Never before has the homemaker had so many advantages on her side in keeping dairy products longer," he claims. "Although dairy products are in the class of perishable food, modern processing, sanitation and refrigeration practices have insured them relatively long keeping qualities."

Koval points out that modern processing and handling of the fluid milk products has increased the time these products will remain sweet up to a week or more in the household refrigerator. Concentrated or manufactured products such as butter, cheese, ice cream, evaporated milk and dry milk, are seldom in danger of spoilage unless unusual conditions of handling are encountered.

"But the homemaker should not assume that dairy products do not need proper care and handling," warns the dairy specialist. "Only correct handling and care will maintain dairy products at their peak in flavor, appearance and texture."

There is something really blood-chilling about those sudden calls of "who! who! who! who!" as they are sent ringing through the stillness of the night, and they can be heard a mile or more away.

Invariably the calls are in series of six. Usually the one call is answered by another if there is another owl within hearing distance.

However before the forests were cleared out to a large extent these big, nocturnal birds, with a wing spread of four feet or more, were so abundant that their loud calls were heard on all sides throughout the night.

Early settlers were literally lulled to sleep by the chorus of the hooting owls, as they called back and forth to their mates and to others of their kind.

I have not heard a hoot owl in Fayette County for 30 years, but I understand they are still heard occasionally along Paint Creek below Rock Mills.

The last one I saw in Ohio flew across the highway at low level, late on evening, in southern Clinton County where there was dense woods on each side of the road.

The last one I saw killed was on the William Selsor farm in Paint Township, where as a boy, I saw one's head partly showing above the rim of a hollow elm snag some 30 feet in height.

My brother obtained his shotgun, stood back with gun poised, and you the fascinating story of the former Coil Camp Ground on the Palmer Rd., and the religious services held there which frequently attracted several thousands of persons in the horse and buggy days.

I am seeking old photographs to use in connection with the Coil Camp Grounds and the meetings, and will appreciate use of any available, which I would like to have without delay.

DENIZENS OF THE DARK

I know that a great many Fayette countians have never heard a hoot or horned owl give its weird, nerve-tingling calls in the late hours of the night.

But until some 50 years ago these great horned owls (so called by the feathers of their ears sticking out like horns) made the nights more or less hideous to timid persons, and particularly those who were caught in the deep woods late in the night, walking or riding horse-back.

There is something really blood-chilling about those sudden calls of "who! who! who! who!" as they are sent ringing through the stillness of the night, and they can be heard a mile or more away.

In those days owls were shot wherever found by reason of raids on chickens and even small pigs.

OIL WELL DATED

On Oct. 29, in this column, I carried a story about the oil and gas well, the first one drilled in Fayette County, which was on the Lewis Clark Coffman property, now owned by Loren Hynes, on Sycamore St., opposite the Coffman Stair Co. plant.

From available material at that time I placed the time of drilling at upward of 75 years ago.

The log kept by Carl Baer, formerly head of The Washington Ice Co. when a well was drilled on the Ice Co. property in 1904, refers to the Coffman well as having been drilled in 1886, or 18 years before the well was drilled for gas and oil on the Ice Co. property.

Reference is made to finding gas and a trace of oil at about the same depth as that found in the well drilled on the Ice Co. property. The Coffman well was drilled about 1,800 feet.

District Merger Tax Ruling Given

COLUMBUS — Atty. Gen. C. William O'Neill has ruled that when a merger of taxing districts causes minimum levies to exceed the 10-mill limitation, the budget commission must reduce those levies proportionately to bring their aggregate within the constitutional limitation.

In another opinion, O'Neill ruled that when a merger of two school districts creates a new district, all tax levies on property in the former districts shall be paid to the new district.

Hidy Rd., in Jefferson Township, south of Bookwalter, killed a pheasant and two big red foxes on the opening day of the hunting season.

He shot both foxes when they were not over 50 feet away, and in doing it, does not figure that he outsmarted the foxes.

"The boys were driving them my way and I was hidden in some weeds, so I shot them before they ran over me," Homer explains.

The foxes were two of the largest killed in the county in recent years.

State Food Expert Reports Institution Chow Improves

By DEAN WAKEFIELD
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—It's with in a lady's province to watch her waistline.

But here's one whose province is keeping her eye on the figures of nearly 60,000 people.

She's Mrs. Mary D. Benham, food management consultant for the state department of mental hygiene and correction and her bailiwick is supervision of the food service program at every state hospital and correctional institution.

A year ago, she undertook the task of raising standards of food preparation and service in Ohio's widespread system of hospitals and prisons.

She inherited a system that was feeding patients and convicts on 48 cents a day — feeding them starchy, tasteless foods which created unbelievable amounts of plate wastage.

Officials and employees had authorization to dip into the institutional larder for anything from a side of beef to a No. 10 can of peaches.

Today, less than a year later, that practice has been abolished. The per person food bill is up to 53 cents, waste is down sharply and patients and convicts are eating tastier foods on a diet averaging 2,247 calories a day.

Mrs. Benham is not overly willing to talk about the changes under her tenure. She feels that her job is simply providing the best possible menu at the cheapest possible price, and doesn't warrant a lot of attention.

The menus, which she shapes personally, are based on nutritional needs in relation to food therapy, age and activity.

Reduced to more common terms, a manual laborer in Ohio Penitentiary gets more to eat than an inactive oldster in a mental hospital. Men at the penitentiary get an average of 4,000 calories a day, as compared to the overall average.

To prevent waste, the food service kitchens may serve orange juice or grapefruit juice instead of stewed prunes.

Orange juice costs about $2.51

Soil Mover Aids In Geauga County Conservation Work

A soil mover is now available to co-operators of the Geauga County Soil Conservation District for building soil conservation practices.

This new machine of one cubic yard capacity employs the latest features found in most large scrapers today. It picks up the soil in front where the operator can see and regulate the cut. The load is carried fast on rubber tires and is dumped backwards for complete spreading and leveling. The soil mover is operated from the seat of the farm tractor needed to pull it, using its own hydraulic system powered through the tractor's power-take-off.

This equipment will be rented to farmers at a small charge to cover maintenance costs. Requests for its use are to be made through the local Soil Conservation District.

The Cleveland Electric Illuminating Co. and George Arthur, local farm equipment dealer at Chagrin Falls, are donors of this machine to the Geauga County Soil Conservation District, according to Wilbur O. Shisler, local technician of the U. S. Soil Conservation Service.

Farm Horsepower At All-Time High

AURORA, Ill. (AP)—Walter Mitchell, research director of a power tool company, says that, although horses are few and far between on the nation's farms, horsepower is at an all-time high.

Since 1945 American farmers' total investment in vehicles and equipment has increased 300 percent to more than $18 billion.

Mrs. Benham operates under the theory that it's false economy to serve prunes that aren't eaten.

New equipment is being installed in prison and hospital kitchens all the time. Instead of cooking vegetables in a common pot and serving potatoes and carrots which all taste alike, each vegetable now

Higher Net Incomes Seen For Farmers

COLUMBUS — Based on current agricultural outlook, net cash incomes of Ohio farmers will average about 5 per cent higher in 1957 than they did this year, an Ohio State University extension economist predicts.

Robert Schwartz reached this conclusion by applying estimated changes in costs of things purchased to quantities used by 246 Ohio farmers in 1955. His calculations are based on the assumption that 1957 gross cash receipts of farmers will be about 4 per cent greater than in 1956, as now indicated in forecasts by agricultural economists.

Assuming that quantities of fuel, fertilizer, seed, labor and other commodities used in production will remain the same, the net cash income of farmers should average 3.6 per cent higher this year than last, and 5.7 per cent higher next year than this year, Schwartz says.

The economist expects seed costs next year to be up 7 per cent; feed costs up 1 per cent; machinery up 2 per cent and farm labor costs up 3 per cent. These higher costs are expected to be more than offset by an increase in gross cash receipts of from 3 to 4 per cent.

'Year of the Big Turnips'

This has been a favorable year for growing big turnips, but when one starts from seed planted Aug. 13, and attains a girth of 27 inches and a weight of eight pounds by Nov. 15 that is really something even for turnips. That particular giant is shown here as it reposed on a table while on display at the Jeffersonville Auto Co. office.

This king of turnips was grown by Frank Smart on the F. R. Marshall farm, west of Jeffersonville. It is a "purple top" variety. Smart grew other turnips of huge size, and the average on his small patch was in excess of two pounds each.

THEN THERE are those huge turnips grown by Otis Bonecutter, of Jonesboro. Bonecutter grew the white ones, and one he brought to the Record-Herald office topped the scales at seven pounds. It had a girth of 27 inches and was about eight inches from top to root. He has a whole patch of big ones.

Other big turnips have been brought in by various persons, and it is possible that some special kind of fertilizer was used in producing the big fellow. In other words, the favorable season may not alone have been responsible for the size of the 1956 turnips.

Farm Payments Small Part Of Total Subsidy Program

COLUMBUS — Farmers aren't the only group receiving financial help from Uncle Sam. In fact, payments to agriculture represent only a small part of the government's total subsidy program, an Ohio State University agricultural economist notes.

Francis B. McCormick, in a study of the government's total financial aid program, cites a section of the federal budget to show that business, labor, veterans, and other groups also sit at the subsidy table.

An analysis of the aids and special services section of the budget for the seven fiscal years 1949-55, shows, McCormick says, that during this period agriculture received about 3.5 billion dollars, business almost 6 billion, veterans over 32.5 billion, and labor 1.5 billion. Almost 10 billion dollars was used for "general aids."

AGRICULTURAL funds, the economist explains, were used mainly for losses on price support programs, expenses for the International Wheat Agreement, payments for removal of surplus commodities and administrative expenses of loan programs. They did not include aids to farmers through favorable interest rates or soil conservation payments.

Business aids and special services included portions of the postal deficit, maritime operation subsidies and navigation and other aids to the shipping industry, aids for air navigation, and net losses occurring on defense production aids.

They did not include benefits brought about by expenditures to stimulate housing construction, economical sources of electric power, or flood control.

The largest federal expenditure for labor was used for federal-state programs of unemployment insurance and public employment offices. The two largest items in the

Ohio's Farmers To Vote Dec. 11 On Corn Control

U. S. Referendum To Decide Type of Planting Program

COLUMBUS — Ohio farmers will vote Dec. 11 on the kind of planting controls they want on next year's corn crop.

Farmers eligible to vote in the national referendum will be those in Ohio's 1957 commercial corn producing counties who produced corn this year. Of Ohio's 88 counties, 71 are in the commercial corn producing area.

Wallace Barr, Ohio State University extension economist, says the referendum will provide farmers with an opportunity to choose whether they want allotments with fewer acres of corn or a corn base program with more acres.

If the corn base plan receives two-thirds vote nationally, the economist explains, farmers must put acreage equal to 15 per cent or more of their corn base in the acreage reserve or the conservation reserve phase of the Soil Bank to receive highest price supports.

Under the plan the Secretary of Agriculture would determine the level of price supports, which could range from 0 to 90 per cent, and the national corn base would be 31 million acres, or about 17.8 per cent larger than the 1956 allotment.

IF THE CORN BASE plan fails to receive a two-thirds vote nationally, farmers would need to comply with their corn acreage allotments to be eligible for price supports.

The price support level would be 75 to 90 per cent of parity, depending on supply, and the national allotment would be 37.3 million acres, or 16 per cent smaller than the 1956 allotment.

Whichever plan the farmers choose Barr says, their participation in the Soil Bank acreage reserve program will be voluntary, but they will have to reduce their corn acreages, either from their allotments or from their corn base.

Mental Patients Get Pensions in Russia

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—Mental patients in Russia have government pensions and appear better dressed than the average person on the streets, reported Dr. Ephraim C. Korol after a two-month study tour of Russian and Scandinavian hospitals.

Korol is a physician at the Napa, Calif., State Hospital.

Ohio Farm Land Value Up 8 Pct.

COLUMBUS — Average Ohio farm land now carries a price tag of about $206 an acre. That's an 8 per cent increase in value over last year, according to H. R. Moore, agricultural economist of the Ohio Agricultural Experiment station.

Ohio now ranks 8th in the nation in farm land values, topped only by New Jersey, Rhode Island, Connecticut, Massachusetts, California, Indiana and Illinois.

Of the midwestern states, only Illinois, with $241, has appreciable higher land values than Ohio. The heavily populated states along the eastern seaboard have the highest land values. Average land in New Jersey, for example, is valued at $442 an acre.

While Ohio land values climbed 8 per cent between July 1955 and July 1956, those throughout the nation rose only 3 per cent, Moore points out. The economist sees the pressure of a growing population and a strong demand from farm operators for additional land as important factors in the price rise.

THE MOVEMENT of people to suburban and open country residences and a decentralization of industry are taking more acres out of agriculture. Also, Ohio is utilizing more land for highways, air fields, water reservoirs, mining developments and recreational areas. These things, Moore points out, continue to displace farmers and create more competition for the remaining rural areas.

In Ohio about one-third of the recent farm land transfers have been to enlarge existing farm units, Moore notes. A farmer often will bid up the price of a 40 or 80-acre tract because he figures the additional land will add to the efficiency of his entire farming unit.

Area Farmers Buy Graded Holsteins

Hubert Baldwin & Sons, Leesburg, recently purchased a Canadian-bred Holstein herd sire from Henry Conklin & Sons, Inc., Plain City, Ohio, to head his 60-cow milking herd. This bull's seven nearest dams average 17,749 766 4.31 per cent. His sire is a son of Marksmen, and from a Very Good dam with 23,883 lbs. of milk, 914 lbs. of fat. His own dam, Abegweit Temple, is 2y 14486 612 42.2 per cent. Her seven nearest dams average 18,026 818 4.54 per cent.

In Conklin's sale, Elmer Haymaker, Washington C. H., purchased the dam of this bull for $1,000 and her two week old son for $600 to head his own herd in the future. Haymaker has the top ranking herd on DHIA in Fayette Co. for 1956.

To make sure that the people who operate the kitchens know how to use the gleaming new equipment, 976 employees are now taking a food service course to bring them up to date on preparation.

Food services feed about 35,000 hospital patients, 10,000 adults in correctional institutions, 1,500 juveniles and 12,000 employees. The employees are eligible to eat at cafeterias operated on a cost-plus basis and most of them take advantage of the opportunity.

Food service operations are expanding all the time, being tailored to growing needs.

A $1,400,000 building for Columbus State School is on the architect's drawing board and new operations are scheduled at Orient and Massillon State Hospitals.

Much of the food for prisons and hospitals is produced on 25,000 acres of the system's own farms.

Mrs. Benham's job includes planning production of these farms. The outside vendors can't be regulated too effectively, of course, but they're learning.

One learned recently that the new setup won't tolerate an open load of liver being trucked into a prison, especially on a hot day.

Opposition to Mrs. Benham's ideas was strong at first, she found. But most skeptics apparently have been convinced that good food under watchful management can be produced almost as economically as poor food.

"There was one superintendent whom I considered one of my severest critics," she said.

"Not too long ago, he came to me and said plate wasteage in his dining rooms had fallen off more than 50 percent and that he was sold on my program.

"His confidence was worth a lot, but I take more satisfaction in the fact that most of the people we feed are a lot healthier now than they were a year ago.

"And it didn't cost much more money."

Under the plan the Secretary of Agriculture would determine the level of price supports, which could range from 0 to 90 per cent, and the national corn base would be 31 million acres, or about 17.8 per cent larger than the 1956 allotment.

IF THE CORN BASE plan fails to receive a two-thirds vote nationally, farmers would need to comply with their corn acreage allotments to be eligible for price supports.

The price support level would be 75 to 90 per cent of parity, depending on supply, and the national allotment would be 37.3 million acres, or 16 per cent smaller than the 1956 allotment.

Whichever plan the farmers choose Barr says, their participation in the Soil Bank acreage reserve program will be voluntary, but they will have to reduce their corn acreages, either from their allotments or from their corn base.

Ohio Farm Land Value Up 8 Pct.

COLUMBUS — Average Ohio farm land now carries a price tag of about $206 an acre. That's an 8 per cent increase in value over last year, according to H. R. Moore, agricultural economist of the Ohio Agricultural Experiment station.

Ohio now ranks 8th in the nation in farm land values, topped only by New Jersey, Rhode Island, Connecticut, Massachusetts, California, Indiana and Illinois.

Of the midwestern states, only Illinois, with $241, has appreciable higher land values than Ohio. The heavily populated states along the eastern seaboard have the highest land values. Average land in New Jersey, for example, is valued at $442 an acre.

While Ohio land values climbed 8 per cent between July 1955 and July 1956, those throughout the nation rose only 3 per cent, Moore points out. The economist sees the pressure of a growing population and a strong demand from farm operators for additional land as important factors in the price rise.

THE MOVEMENT of people to suburban and open country residences and a decentralization of industry are taking more acres out of agriculture. Also, Ohio is utilizing more land for highways, air fields, water reservoirs, mining developments and recreational areas. These things, Moore points out, continue to displace farmers and create more competition for the remaining rural areas.

Corporations Giving Liberally To Education

A rich man of past times once said that it was easier to make a million dollars than to dispose of it wisely.

In a recent speech Vice President James H. Pipkin of The Texas Company recalled this, and added that, due to his close association with his company's aid-to-education program, he "... can agree wholeheartedly that the wise disposition of large sums of money is a difficult and challenging task." It is also, a task, he went on, with which management people in both large and small corporations are becoming increasingly familiar.

As recently as 1936, corporation contributions to scientific, educational and charitable agencies amounted to only about $30 million. Now the rate is around $500 million a year, of which some 16 per cent goes for educational purposes. The growth in such corporate spending was stimulated by a change in the income tax laws making the contributions tax-exempt up to five per cent of net income. A friendly stockholder's suit, in which the courts upheld the validity of this type of corporate action, was also an important factor.

Mr. Pipkin, clearly, is convinced that such aid to education is vitally important and that more and more concerns should participate. The need is great. Since before World War II, he says, enrollment in the non-tax-supported colleges and universities has increased some 200 per cent. Since 1948 per capita costs have increased 50 per cent, but it has been possible to raise tuition rates by only 25 per cent. To make matters worse, inflation has greatly reduced the value of former endowments.

Along with this, we are ever more dependent upon college-educated men and women. These people constitute but 10 per cent of the population—but from their ranks come three-quarters of industrial managers and political leaders.

The magnitude of the problem can be judged by some other statistics Mr. Pipkin cites. Between now and 1965 our private institutions of higher learning will need for investment additional endowments of $4.1 billion to provide for increased operating costs—plus another $4 billion for buildings and facilities. Business, he then observes, should help meet these needs in two ways — by giving more, and by acting as "... catalytic agents whose contributions will encourage giving on the part of others."

Mr. Pipkin presents various principles that are important to systematic corporate giving, and have been found sound by the universities and corporations alike—among them that the gifts are most useful to the college when they are unrestricted, that scholarships and fellowships should not bind students to a choice of employment or career, and that scholarship programs should be operated by the recipient schools rather than the donors.

Finally, he says: "The colleges and universities must provide this nation with an uninterrupted, ever-increasing flow of first-rate manpower. ... We must assist our institutions of higher learning in their critical assignment to supply these stalwart standard-bearers of democracy. Failure to do so could be disastrous; fully to do so could bring us to the high-water mark of history and prove—perhaps for all time—that the forces of freedom, knowledge and good-will are always superior to those of dictatorship, darkness, and destruction."

Investing Capital Abroad

By George Sokolsky

Charles R. Carroll, counsel to the board of directors of the National Foreign Trade Council, Inc., writing on "Private Investments Abroad," makes the point:

"It is only natural that governments of these 'backward' nations, often older in culture though younger in terms of modern economies, should be reluctant to accept our prescription for the economic development to which they aspire. One may observe, in discussions of the economic and Social Council of the U. N., the persistent and at times almost frantic search for alternatives to reliance upon imported private capital, associated as it is in some thinking with colonialism and economic imperialism."

The answer to this dilemma seems to me quite simple: It is to refuse to invest in such countries as are unwilling to provide ample and decent protection for foreign capital. Let such countries find whatever means they may to develop their resources, and if they are unable to find adequate means, let them remain as weak and backward as they choose.

It has for instance not served the United States to finance Egypt because its effect was to build Nasser into a dictator who turned on the United States when he could not get all that he wanted.

And similarly, there is private investment in Arabian oil which is only endangering the entire foreign policy of the United States and possibly leading the world to war. While foreign trade has its values, these values need to be weighed against the costs.

For instance, years ago when I lived in China, I once calculated that 100 years of American trade and association with China netted the United States a loss. To protect that trade, the United States maintained a fleet in Asiatic waters, the Yangtze patrol, the marines in Peking, the 15th Infantry in Tientsin and for some time after 1925, a regiment of marines in Shanghai.

We fought the Boxers; we protected our citizens against the Taipings, against the Kuomintang in 1911; against the Communists in 1925-7; we went to war with Japan in 1941, and if every detail needs to be accounted for, we maintained an expeditionary force under Gen. Graves in Manchuria and Siberia between 1918 and 1920.

All these costs need to be weighed against the value of our trade with China between 1841 and 1941 which is just a century. The figures would be very discouraging.

Carroll propounds the very sound rule:

"As a principal, this government should recognize first, that any sovereign nation is entitled to set the pattern of its own economy—even if that pattern is to our minds, unrealistic and unsound. It is equally axiomatic that our natural resources and public funds are part of our sovereignty.

Consequently if a foreign government asks our financial assistance, it is entirely proper for the U. S. Congress to impose terms which express our predilection both for private enterprise, and for allowing private capital its appropriate functions in economic development. Only thus can our government promote the growth abroad of economies congenial to our own."

And if those economies are not congenial to our own, it is a mark of wisdom to stay out of those countries. It may be true that a very few Americans can show earnings in Soviet Russia during Lenin's "New Economic Policy (NEP)" which did not last long but, by and large, the economy of the United States netted a loss in Russia from 1917 to the present day.

During World War II, Siam got 11 billion dollars out of the United States, and we have had to defend ourselves against Russia ever since. This does not mean that foreign trade is a waste or a loss; it also does not mean that all foreign trade is beneficial.

This much we can accept as likely to be true: money will flow to wherever the greatest amount of return can immediately be earned, even at considerable risk. That is the essence of the capitalistic system, in which enormous risks are taken usually in anticipation of a profit after losses are deducted.

Today when private capital does not flow in a particular direction, the government taxes private capital and sends the money where it is politically desirable. This nearly always results in a total loss, because money is safest when it is controlled by economic laws; it is most unsafe when it is controlled by political considerations.

Sick-Room Visitor Given Eight Rules

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN

Few things can be more irritating to someone who is ill than an inconsiderate visitor. Even for someone who is recovering, and happily looking forward to getting on his feet soon, a visit by a thoughtless friend can quickly bring gloom and despair.

I've previously advised you how to be a good patient. Now let me tell you how to be a good sick-room visitor.

Eight Rules

Dr. Russell L. Dicks, chaplain at the Duke University Hospital, has listed eight rules to follow. I'm going to pass them on to you.

1. Don't just barge in. Learn from a relative or friend when it is convenient to call. Don't call a doctor or nurse to ask about visiting the patient.

2. Be adaptable to the patient's mood, and remember to be slightly on the cheerful side.

3. Don't sit down unless asked to do so. And if you do sit, don't sit in the patient's light or in a position where he will have to strain to see you.

4. Shake hands only if the sick person offers his hand first. Speak in a natural tone.

5. Two visitors might be too much for the patient. So if another visitor is present when you arrive, don't stay unless the patient insists or the other visitor offers to leave.

6. Ask how the patient feels, but don't ask for a diagnosis. Let the patient talk about whatever he wants.

7. Get ready to leave if the patient becomes restless or there is a lag in the conversation.

When you're ready to go leave without any prolonged goodbyes. A well-mannered and considerate visitor will follow these rules whether he is visiting the patient in a hospital or at home.

Fur Trapping Still 'Big Business' Here

By B. E. KELLEY
Oscar Howe, who probably is the champion trapper in this part of Ohio, on Thursday and Friday caught 91 muskrats, eight raccoons and five mink with a total pelt value of $130 or more.

Howe spent many years in Washington C. H. but at present resides in Mount Sterling, and devotes much of his time to running his line of 125 traps along various streams, and in areas where he knows the animals may be trapped. He has been trapping for more than 25 years.

The mink, which were choice, brought around $15 each, the muskrats $1 or more, and raccoons around $1.

He disposed of them at Jobe Rumer's raw fur station, in the rear of the Surplus Sales Co. store on S. Fayette St.

Rumer has been buying and selling furs for 35 years, and I was amazed to know that in a single day this fall he had purchased as many as 200 muskrats, many raccoons, minks, opossums and foxes.

Friday, following the bitter cold night and the snowfall, he was accumulating many animals, with the pile of muskrats gradually increasing as the day went by.

MOST of the muskrats are brought in without being skinned, and Rumer long since has become an expert in skinning all kinds of animals.

Buying and selling raw furs still is "big business," in Fayette County.

Herman Crabtree, who operates a cream station on Main St. in Jeffersonville, recently caught three muskrats that were different from any he had previously trapped.

All had a great deal of white on their bellies, their feet were white and part of their long, flat tails, also were white.

At least one of them had a white "star" in the middle of its forehead, and all apparently were this year's rats as they were not as large as some which are trapped. Their fur was of exceptionally fine quality.

The muskrats, I understand, were trapped in upper Sugar Creek.

Apparently there are more than the usual number of the animals in Fayette County streams this year, although the catch has been steadily dwindling over a period of years.

CRABTREE has been trapping for 45 years, and has made some valuable catches.

Originally the streams and swamps of Fayette County teemed with tens of thousands of muskrats, but little attention was given them except when they were trapped or shot for their fine fur.

These aquatic rodents are vegetarians and are found throughout the United States and Canada. Their hind feet are webbed to aid them in swimming.

They spend much time in the water, and can swim for considerable distances under water, although ordinarily they are surface swimmers unless molested.

THEY GET their name from a musky scent which they emit, and their homes invariably are in the banks of streams and pools. Frequently the entrance to their subterranean homes is just below the water line, or may be just above water line. When streams are at flood stage they lose their happy homes until the water recedes, and they take refuge wherever they can, usually in driftwood.

Sometimes they emulate the beaver in building dome-shaped homes of reeds, sticks, and mud, where they spend part of their time. These are in shallow water, where draft has lodged.

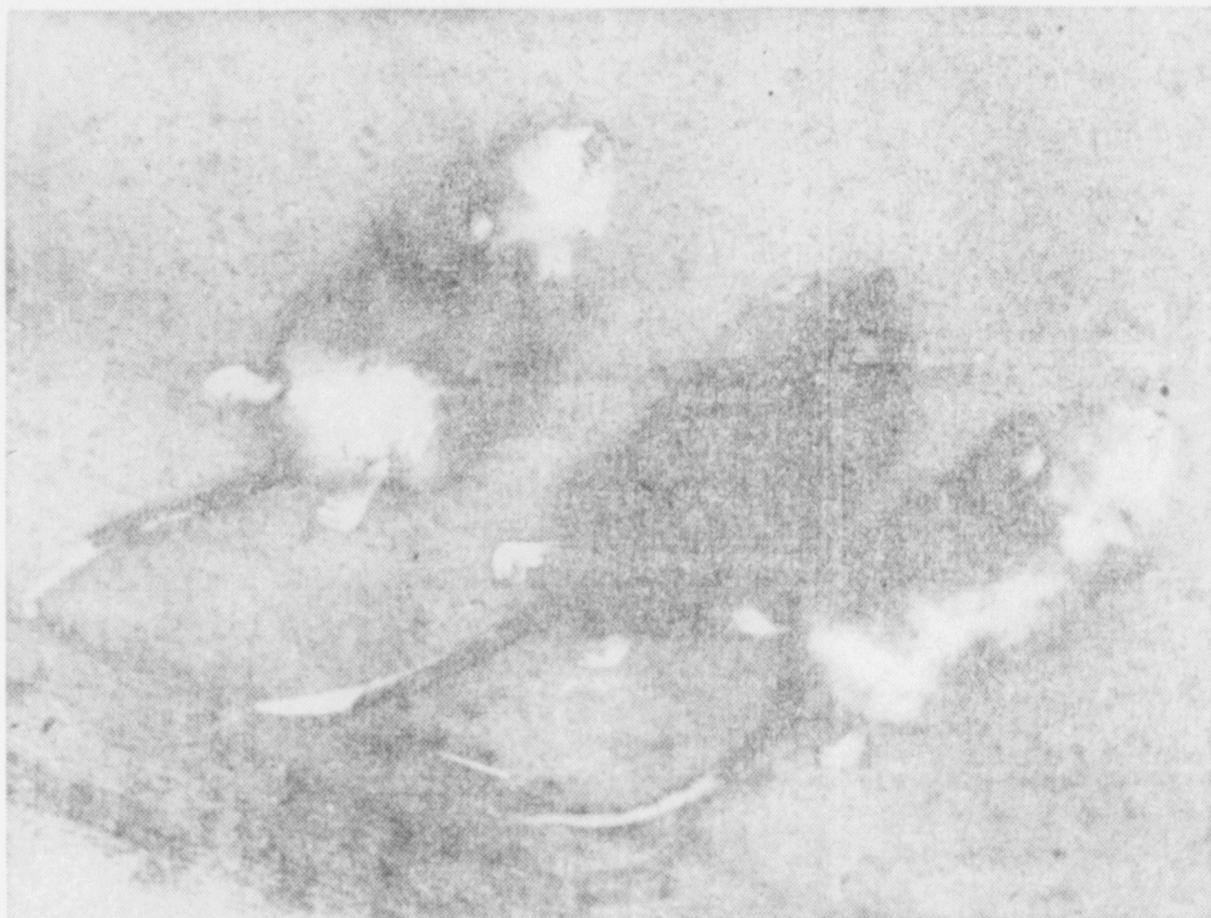

Some people are fond of the meat of muskrats, claiming it is unusually tender and flavorful, and that there is no animal cleaner in its habits.

Fifty years ago, when muskrats were much more abundant than at present, their pelts sold for only a few cents each, and one that brought 10 cents was unusually large and of choice quality.

Mink also inhabit stream banks, and are decidedly carnivorous, or flesh eaters, but are rather scarce throughout this area.

Raccoons are chiefly flesh eaters and den in hollow trees, and logs.

IT'S SO EASY TO PLACE A WANT AD.

RARE MUSKRATS—These unusual white-bellied, white-footed muskrats were caught by Herman Crabtree, Jeffersonville, who had been trapping for 45 years.

New Area Telephone Charge Rule Set Up

COLUMBUS (AP)—The Public Utilities Commission of Ohio has adopted rules that spell out how much a telephone company can charge subscribers for bringing service to new areas.

Copies of the new rules are being sent to all phone companies.

They obligate telephone companies to provide one-half mile of free construction for each subscriber to be served. The subscribers themselves will figure out how the cost after the free construction shall be shared.

'Pro' Con Man Given Sentence

CINCINNATI (AP)—Joseph P. Newsham, 61, of New Orleans, La., described by a postal inspector as a "professional confidence man for more than 25 years," pleaded guilty in U. S. District Court Friday to a charge of mail fraud. Judge John H. Druffel sentenced him to two years in the federal penitentiary.

Newsham was charged with mailing fraudulent checks to bonding firms for the purchase of state and municipal bonds.

Gas Firm's Service Refusal To Be Aired

COLUMBUS (AP)—There will be a public hearing Dec. 12 before the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio on a complaint by Shirley Snyder who lives near Chesapeake in Lawrence County.

Snyder contends that the Ohio Fuel Gas Co. has refused to give him service although a line crosses his property.

Trucks parked overnight in Glacier National Park have to be fenced in. Favorite food of porcupines are synthetic rubber tires.

Family Affair

PRESTONSBURG, Ky. (AP)—Corn growing honors in Floyd County, Ky., are a family affair. Barbara Lafferty grew 129.5 bushels to an acre to win first place from her father, J. L. Lafferty, Jr., the defending champ who finished second in the annual contest. Grandpa J. L. Lafferty Sr., finished fourth.

HONORED — George E. Sokolsky (center) receives the Banhees Tenth Annual Silver Lady award for "his outstanding work as a newspaperman." Presenting the statuette to Sokolsky is humorist Arthur "Bugs" Baer, Chief Banhee, as J. D. Gortatowsky, president of King Features Syndicate, looks on. Sokolsky's column appears daily in the Record-Herald.

TRAPPER - Oscar Howe is holding two minks and a large muskrat, part of a catch of 91 muskrats, eight raccoons and five mink in two days time, which he marketed here Friday.

Do Autos Hurt Freshman Grades?

Each institution is keeping a record of grades may be car-owning frosh and their pedestrian classmates. Taking into account the IQ of each individual and other factors, a four-man board will evaluate the findings and give an answer to the question.

How To Care for Aged Remains Unanswered Puzzle

U. S. Has Growing 'Senior Citizen' Problem

By GROVER BRINKMAN

(Central Press Association)
NEW YORK — It's nice to retire at 65— if you can afford it. However, today the compulsory retirement age of 65 is getting a long, hard look by personnel specialists, insurance actuaries, labor unions and welfare groups.

Insurance researchers have found, for example, that over half of all men continue working after 65. Even at 74, there still are 40 per cent "grinding away."

American suddenly is aware that people are living longer. That is what has upset the apple cart. We still are hunting ways and means to care for these older people, to keep them useful, healthy and contented.

At the turn of the century, only 4 per cent of America's population was over 65. Today the percentage has doubled — is climbing daily.

In the next few decades, the "plus 65s" in America may reach 25 million— or double the percentage at the turn of the century. As this large group of "senior citizens" increases in number, scientists, legislators, educators and social workers are all seeking ways to make them happier and healthier. Progress is being made— but there still are many problems.

SOUND ENGINEERS and optical experts are inventing new and more efficient aids to hearing and seeing. For example, at Ohio State University, a machine magnifies the printed page five times.

In New York, a publisher is printing "books for tired eyes"— large - print editions, easy to read. The transistor has enabled hard-of-hearing oldersters to wear practically invisible hearing aids that give them "young ears."

The problem of housing is being studied by architects and city planners.

Houses with 10 steps to climb, kitchens that save work, bathrooms engineered for safety — everything that promotes comfort, safety and health for older people— are being studied.

Some are social service experiments like the Tompkins Square house in New York; others are private or quasi-private enterprises, including many cottage communities in Florida.

Soon we'll have 25 million "over 65" citizens.

However, it is in the field of geriatrics, the study of the physiology of the aging, that most of the important benefits are coming to older people. Physiologists have been analyzing death records for clues. One finding is that old age does not kill people— disease does.

RESEARCHERS at St. Luke's Hospital in St. Louis led Dr. A. A. Albanese to the conclusion that, contrary to widespread belief, the diet for the aged should contain less water and more fat than that of younger adults.

His experiments have cast doubt on the belief, now current, that a low fat diet was a preventative of arteriosclerosis.

It is common knowledge that fractures and other body injuries repair more slowly with advancing years. Nutritional studies now reveal that several cups of milk or skimmed milk, included in the daily diet of the elderly, protects bones against brittleness and helps prevent fractures.

Iron deficiency is another problem often found in older people— giving rise to weakness and exhaustion.

A lack of the trace elements — copper, cobalt and manganese — also are vital elements often found lacking in oldersters.

Meat which contains iron also has been found to be a health stimulant in old people. Likewise, liberal amount of vitamin A may work wonders in a person over 60. Lack of B vitamins often gives rise to neuritis, and even mental disturbances. Vitamin C helps keep the tissues strong and healthy as age advances.

A RECENT medical report showed that 60 per cent of aged hospital patients suffered from abnormal liver functioning. When they were given a new drug, methisclol, liver function returned to normal.

Here we have, on one hand, various researchers all striving to improve the health of older people, so they may live longer. And on the other hand we have a society barrier that says a man of 65 must retire. But what will he do, from this retirement age, until he dies, possibly 15 or 20 years later?

MOST OF US are not content to enjoy a rocking chair. It is inherent in most people to be useful, wanted, necessary to the life about them. Many an oldster of 65 is just as efficient as a younger man— in many cases even more so— if he is given a chance to prove it. He resents being put on the shelf.

Even if he can afford to retire, he still feels he must do something useful, if only some hobby, church work, or part-time job. That is as it should be.

That is the problem we face today: to give the older people something to do, something to live for.

With all of the research being directed to this age group, it should not be long before the problem is licked.

Today, the problem of how to enjoy those later years is a puzzle that each man and woman must personally solve.

Remember that word, "geriatrics." You'll be hearing more and more about it.

Austria Swamped By Refugee Stream

VIENNA (AP)—Reports of Soviet deportations of rebels continued to filter out of Hungary, despite government denials.

Austria was swamped by the influx of Hungarian refugees despite efforts by the Kadar government and the Russians to seal off the escape routes. Dr. Bruno Kreisky, state secretary in the Austrian Foreign Ministry, said:

"We have now received more than 60,000 refugees; we can't handle this thing any longer."

Retired OU Math Professor Dies

A native of Virginia, he taught at the University of Illinois and Cornell University before coming to Ohio University in 1923. He retired in 1951.

America Gains Point Edge in Olympic Games

Gold Medals Pour In During Big Sweep of Track, Field Events

MELBOURNE (U)—Uncle Sam's muscle men and fleet runners swept gold medals in the 100-meter dash, 400-meter hurdles, hammer throw and broad jump today in one of America's finest Olympic hours to take a commanding lead over Russia in the unofficial point total.

Three Olympic records were shattered and another was tied to the delight of another capacity crowd of 100,000 that jammed the huge stadium on a hot, windy afternoon.

Passing the Russians, Germans and Swedes in the point table, the powerful United States team made a shambles of the second full day of actual competition. In addition, the Americans qualified a full three-man quota in the 800-meter run and pole vault and put Isabelle Daniels of Jakin, Ga. into Monday's finals in the women's 100-meter dash.

With only the middleweight event in the weightlifting division and the team foils in fencing still to be decided on the day's program, America's point haul for the day already had reached 65 for a total of 100. Russia was second with 80 points.

Hal Connolly, the 220-pound Bostonian who finished third in the trials at Los Angeles, toppled the favored Russians and won the hammer throw with a new Olympic record heave of 207 feet 3 1/2 inches. All six finalists, including the former record holder, Jozsef Csernak of Hungary, bettered the old mark. Al Hall of Hoboken, N. J., placed fourth with a toss of 203 feet, 3 1/2 inches. The third American, Cliff Blair of Hingham, Mass., has been dropped off the squad for writing articles for a Boston newspaper.

Glenn Davis, 21-year-old Ohio State sophomore from Clinton, Ohio who set a world record of 49.5 seconds in the U. S. Trials, led a 1-2-3 American sweep in the 400-meter hurdles. Davis set a new Olympic standard of 50.1 seconds and Eddie Southern of Dallas who finished second tied the old mark of 50.8 set by Cornell's Charlie Moore in 1952. Josh Culbreath, a Morgan State College grad from Norristown, Pa., completed the U. S. parade by finishing third in 51.6 seconds.

Christy Morrow, the Abilene Christian flash from San Benito, Tex., started his hoped-for double by winning the 100-meter dash in a photo finish with teammate Thane Baker of Elkhart, Kan. Running against a stiff 10-mile-an-hour wind, Morrow was clocked in 10.5 seconds after tying the Olympic record with a 10.3 victory in the semi-finals. The third American, Ira Murchison of Chicago, was ousted out by Australia's Hector Hogan and finished fourth.

Greg Bell, a muscular Indiana University student who is the father of one child, leaped 25 feet 8 1/2 inches to continue the U. S. gold medal parade in the broad jump. John Bennett of the U. S. Army and Grand Forks, N. D., was second with 25 feet 2 1/2 inches and the other American entry, Rafter Johnson of Kingsburg, Calif., withdrew because of a sore knee to concentrate on his specialty, the decathlon.

Even in the 50-kilometer walk (31 miles and 121 yards), the U.S. did better than expected with a seventh-place finish by Adolf Weinacker, a 28-year-old Detroit veterinarian, the best by an American in many years. The top effort in 1952 at Helsinki was 22nd place.

The long heel-and-toe stroll was won by Norman Read of New Zealand in four hours 30 minutes, 42.8 seconds, a popular victory with the Australian fans.

The American basketball team left no doubt about its superiority

Ohio Pheasant Kill Said Above Early Predictions

COLUMBUS, Ohio (U)—The Ohio Division of Wildlife reports that the pheasant kill on the opening day of the state's hunting season Nov. 15 was better than expected throughout all the normal pheasant range.

The division made its report after William R. Edwards, game management biologist, analyzed surveys of game protectors. The division said that as expected, the rabbit population was down 20 to 25 per cent over most of the state, with a few scattered areas reporting fair to good rabbit shooting.

Edwards said at least one factor was instrumental in providing by humbling little Thailand 101-29 to reach the second round. All-America Bill Russell played only nine minutes against the Thailand team which gave away about eight inches a man in height. An upset 76-67 victory by France over Russia, the team expected to press the U. S., shocked the crowd.

A high wind and rough water on Lake Wendouree at Ballarat upset the rowing program and forced rescheduling of the repechages (second chance) to Sunday, originally an open date in the Olympics.

Yale's eight-oared crew, upset in the first heat, will be the only American competitor in the repechages as the six other U. S. entries in the other events won their first heats and advanced to Monday's semi-finals.

Tom Courtney, the former Fordham half-mile from Livingston, N. J., Pittsburgh's Arnie Sowell and Lon Spurrier of Delano, Calif., sped into the 800-meter finals Monday by breezing through the eliminations.

Courtney and Spurrier finished 1-2 in one heat in 1:53.6 and Sowell won the other in 1:50 as Jim Bailey, the Australian who broke the four-minute mile barrier as a student at Oregon, was eliminated with a surprising seventh place finish.

Denmark's Gunnar Nielsen, who figured to be a contender, withdrew to save himself for the 1,500-meter (Olympic mile) competition that starts Thursday.

Counting the high jump victory by Charlie Dumas of Los Angeles in Friday's competition, the U.S. men's track and field forces had won five of the first seven gold medals with Russia and New Zealand each taking one. The other medal in track and field had gone to a Czechoslovakian woman in the discus.

Bears Favored to Defeat Giants in Top Pro Battle

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The high-scoring Chicago Bears today were seven point favorites to defeat the New York Giants in Sunday's big game which will go a long way toward deciding the conference titleholders in the National Football League.

The odds-makers are giving the Bears the edge on the strength of a seven game winning streak which boosted them into first place in the Western Conference. The Bears hold a one-half game lead over Detroit which lost its share of the top spot by losing to Green Bay on Thanksgiving Day.

A crowd of close to 70,000 is expected to witness a bruising struggle in Yankee Stadium. The Bears have scored 288 points—most in the circuit. The Giants' key should be their crack defensive line.

New York, the Eastern Conference leaders with a 6-2 record, will depend on the running of Frank Gifford and Alex Webster plus the passing of Charley Conerly. The Giants, however, have no one to match the brilliance of Harlon Hill, the Bears' end. Hill will have two and three men on him which will open areas for Bear runners and other pass receivers.

A Giant setback and a Chicago Cardinal victory over Pittsburgh would produce a deadlock for first place in the Eastern. The Cards lost to the Steelers 14-7 last week but they'll be on their home grounds Sunday. Chicago is favored by 6 1/2 points.

The streaking Washington Redskins take on the Cleveland Browns in another important game. The Redskins are three point favorites off their successive triumphs over the Browns, Cards, Detroit and the Giants.

Rounding out the five-game program, San Francisco will be at Philadelphia and Los Angeles at Baltimore.

The Redskins, who lost their first three games, started a four-game winning streak by beating the Browns 20-9 in Washington last Oct. 21. Then Washington knocked over three division leaders in a row—the Chicago Cardinals, Detroit Lions and New York Giants.

Babe Parilli, Browns' quarterback who was injured two weeks ago, probably will see little action.

"We just don't know about Parilli's injury," Brown said. "He's getting better. It's just a pulled muscle."

Third string quarterback Tom O'Connell, who played the entire game in last week's 16-0 victory over Philadelphia, probably will start against the Redskins, and play all or most of the game.

The Browns also will be without the services of Jim Ray Smith, rookie defensive end from Baylor. Smith had to report back to the Army this week to be mustered out. He'll be back with the Browns next week.

Brown said he'll have only 28 or 29 players available—the smallest squad he's ever had to work with. Quarterback George Ratterman and fullback Ed Modzelewski are both out, probably for the season, with leg injuries.

Maurice Bassett will again replace Modzelewski. Curly Morrison will have to spell both Bassett and halfback Preston Carpenter.

The Browns' defensive unit, which sparked last week in holding Philadelphia to 71 yards from scrimmage and preventing them from crossing their own 47 yard line, will get another test against Washington.

Moore, Patterson Pass Physicals

CHICAGO (U)—Archie Moore and Floyd Patterson passed their physical examinations Friday for their heavyweight championship fight Nov. 30 in Chicago Stadium.

The Illinois Athletic Commission was satisfied that Patterson's right hand, broken in a victory over Hurricane Jackson last June, had healed properly.

Moore's pulse was 56 before exercise and 58 after. Patterson's pulse was 68 before exercise and 70 after.

Someone asked if Moore's slow pulse was unusual but Dr. Irving Slott said "It's a common finding among well conditioned fighters."

Miami Defeats West Virginia

MIAMI (U)—The University of Miami has moved closer to its most successful year on record—despite NCAA restrictions—to launch the last full-scale college football weekend.

As the nation's second best team in rushing defense, the unbeaten Hurricane checked West Virginia at 45 ground yards Friday night for an 18-0 triumph.

The only Miami varsity team to finish a regular season unbeaten was the 1950 aggregation which promptly lost to Clemson in the Orange Bowl 15-14. Banned from a bowl and tied only by Georgia, the current Hurricanes need only to hurdle Florida and Pitt to better that showing.

Carl Smith Makes All-Star List And SEC All-Sophomore Team

Carl Smith has lived up to all the great things football fans predicted for him while he was running roughshod over the opposition as left halfback for the Lions of WHS before he was graduated in 1952. And, he still has two games and two years to go at the University of Tennessee.

After he had scored three touchdowns to help Volunteers beat Mississippi State 27 to 7 last Saturday, he was placed on the "check list of stars" of the Southeastern Conference (SEC).

He also has been named fullback on the ALL-SEC sophomore team, one of the highest honors that can come to a football player in his first year.

With him on the mythical all-star sophomore team are: Backfield: Smith (Tenn) fb, J. W. Brodenax (Louisiana) hb, Tommy Lorina (Auburn) hb and Bill Stacey (Miss) qb; ends, Jerry Wilson (Auburn) and Doug Shively (Kentucky); tackles, Dave Sinkton (Ala.) and Sid Neighbors (Ala.); guards, (Tie) Bobby Urbano (Tenn), Billy Rains (Ala.) Mike Anderson (Georgia) and centers (tie) Gene Graves (Fla.) and Jackson Benson (Miss).

The all-star team was picked by the conference coaches.

WITH TWO games yet to play, (Kentucky Nov. 24 and Vanderbilt Dec. 1,) the former WHS Lion line-buster, has gained 359 yards in the 62 times he has carried the ball as fullback in the Vols' weird single wing offense. That is an average of 5.1 yards per carry. Incidentally, he has a better average than his all-American candidate team mate, Quarterback John Majors.

After last Saturday's Vol victory over Ole Miss, Harry Mehre, former Georgia and Mississippi coach, said of Smith in a byline article in the Atlanta Journal: "...the boy showed me the most dangerous fullback I have seen this season. Smith has the speed to go all the way, whether it be from the one or the 91."

Washington C. H. football fans are looking forward to seeing him perform in one of the New Year's

DeMarco Peeved At Own Showing

NEW YORK (U)—Tony DeMarco, former welterweight champion, was a downcast figure Friday night in his dressing room after losing a split 10-round decision to Gaspar Ortega, a 4 to 1 underdog from Mexicali, Mexico.

"I was more disappointed in myself than in the decision," DeMarco admitted. "It was a close fight and it could have gone to me. But I was upset by my own performance. I just didn't have it."

62 Games Bowled On 62nd Birthday

KANSAS CITY (U)—Tommye Thomas, a former weight lifter and wrestler, bowled 62 games Thursday to celebrate his 62nd birthday.

Thomas began bowling a game for each year of his life on his 59th birthday.

He began his 62-game marathon at 8:24 a. m. and finished at 7:30 p. m. He rolled a 171 average. His high was 210, his low 126.

Ohioan Ties Olympic Mark In Hurdles

MELBOURNE (U)—Glenn Davis of Clinton, Ohio, who won the Olympic 400-meter hurdles today in the Olympic record—tying time of 50.1 seconds, said he knew he had it with two hurdles remaining.

"I kept thinking Eddie Southern was at my elbow and might shoot past," Davis added, "but when I reached the next to last hurdle I knew the race was mine and I was a happy man."

Southern, an 18-year-old from Dallas, finished second. He said later his mind was a complete blank until he reached the last hurdle, adding:

"I thought I could catch Glenn at the last hurdle, but I started my spurt too late. I could see he had me."

Josh Culbreath of Norristown, Pa., finished third for the first 1-2-3 sweep of the games.

On the stand for the medal presentations, Davis reached down from the champion's pinnacle and rubbed a hand through Culbreath's hair.

"Let's repeat this in 1960 at Rome," he said. Culbreath grinned broadly.

Davis, a student at Ohio State, said he was happy about his race although he said he feared Southern all the way and didn't feel secure until he hit the tape.

"When I crossed the line, I just looked up in the sky and said, 'Thanks.'"

Monday Slated As Big Day in Phone Dispute

Ohio Assembly Due To Meet; Portsmouth Police Chief Quitting

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Two events closely linked with the long strike against the Ohio Consolidated Telephone Co. are scheduled for Monday.

One will see the veteran chief of police of Portsmouth hang up his badge on the day the city manager makes public his findings on police activities during strike disturbances in the Ohio River city.

The other will be the meeting at 1 p. m. Monday of the Ohio General Assembly, called into special session by Gov. Frank J. Lausche to consider a new law enabling the state to take over a public utility in an emergency.

Portsmouth Police Chief Hugh Ruddy has announced his retirement, after 33 years on the force, will be effective Jan. 1. But he asked City Manager R. E. Layton to grant him a leave of absence to run from Monday until the retirement begins.

The police department and Ruddy have been criticized by a citizen's group for what it said was police failure to avert demonstrations that resulted in the mid-October closing of Portsmouth exchanges of the Ohio Consolidated.

The YUGOSLAV Communist newspaper Borba and government organ Politika gave this account of what happened next:

The Hungarians, accompanied by two Yugoslav diplomats, entered a bus provided by the Kadar government.

A Soviet officer jumped on the bus in front of the embassy. A car with Soviet security officials pulled in front of the bus and another to its side. The two cars escorted the bus to Soviet headquarters.

The Yugoslav diplomats protested the Russians were violating the Yugoslav - Hungarian agreement. The Russian officer ordered them from the bus.

At the Soviet headquarters, two armored cars replaced the security automobiles and Nagy and his friends were taken away.

Nagy, a life - long Communist once imprisoned for advocating a Tolstoid course for Hungary, came to power again in the anti-Communist rebellion that erupted last month and swept the country. He brought other political parties into the government, denounced the Moscow - sponsored Warsaw military alliance, proclaimed Hungary's neutrality between East and West and called on the United Nations to guarantee his nation's independence.

Then reinforced Soviet tank divisions struck throughout Hungary Nov. 4, ousting Nagy and installing Soviet puppet János Kadar as premier. Nagy and many of his followers took sanctuary in the Yugoslav Embassy.

Nagy's return to power and withdrawal of Russian forces from Hungary were the main demands of workers who have refused to work since the Soviet attack. In recent days Kadar told workers' delegations he would welcome Nagy in his government.

Ohio Violators Pay Record in Fines

COLUMBUS (AP)—Law violators in 141 Ohio cities last year paid a record $9,575,019 in fines, costs and forfeitures, nearly triple the amount paid 10 years ago, State Auditor James A. Rhodes says.

Rhodes said Friday that revenue from police courts 10 years ago totaled only $3,436,497.

Rhodes said total expenditures in the 141 cities for operation, maintenance and interest amounted to $345,217,012 last year. Of that, he said, about 20 percent went for police and fire department operating expenses.

Trio Starving; Cash Plentiful

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—An elderly Philadelphia couple and their daughter were found Friday near starvation and suffering from exposure in their unheated home. Scattered about the house was $5,600 in cash and another $9,000 in bank deposits.

The parents, Meyer Golob, 75, a retired pants presser, and his wife, Fannie, 73, were taken to Philadelphia General Hospital. Their daughter, Rose, 50, was admitted to Beberry State Mental Hospital. Police said all three suffered from malnutrition.

State Department Chiefs Parley

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP)—The State Department's top figures are conferring at the Key West cottage where Secretary Dulles is recuperating from surgery.

Ohio Assembly Due To Meet; Portsmouth Police Chief Quitting

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Two events closely linked with the long strike against the Ohio Consolidated Telephone Co. are scheduled for Monday.

One will see the veteran chief of police of Portsmouth hang up his badge on the day the city manager makes public his findings on police activities during strike disturbances in the Ohio River city.

The other will be the meeting at 1 p. m. Monday of the Ohio General Assembly, called into special session by Gov. Frank J. Lausche to consider a new law enabling the state to take over a public utility in an emergency.

Portsmouth Police Chief Hugh Ruddy has announced his retirement, after 33 years on the force, will be effective Jan. 1. But he asked City Manager R. E. Layton to grant him a leave of absence to run from Monday until the retirement begins.

Ohio Water Co. To Serve Mahoning Suburban District

The Ohio Water Service Co., which serves Washington C. H., has signed a 20-year contract with the commissioners of Mahoning County to furnish water service to the recently created Charles Run Sewer District in Boardman Township, south of Youngstown.

The contract calls for Ohio Water Service to provide facilities including pipelines, booster station and a standpipe.

The newly created sewer district is in one of Youngstown's fastest-growing suburban areas. County Engineer Samuel Gould Jr., has estimated that a "tremendous boom" in the area will add 4,000 new homes in the section by 1958 and in crease the population by 17,000.

Ohio Water Service Company has been furnishing water service under a similar contract to an adjoining sewer district from a plant which also serves the city of Struthers and the village of Poland.

Two Men Facing Fighting Charges

George S. Joseph, 26, Mount Sterling, and Milo Morris, 32, Temple St., were taken into custody Friday night on charges of fighting at the Home Restaurant on Rose Ave.

Arraignment Set For Pen Guard

COLUMBUS (U)—An Ohio Penitentiary guard was to be arraigned in municipal court today on a charge of illegally conveying drugs into the prison.

The charge against Olen E. Roshon, 54, of Basil, was made in an affidavit filed Friday by Warden Ralph W. Alvis.

Roshon was arrested Wednesday when he reported for work. Columbus police said they found 800 pills and capsules of dextroamphetamine in Roshon's lunch bucket.

Police said Roshon admitted smuggling the drugs to inmates but denied accepting money for it.

Spanish Dance Duo Launches Concert Season

The fiery Spanish dance rhythms of Rey & Gomez were in sharp contrast Friday night to the winter weather outside the Washington High School auditorium.

However, a small but appreciative Community Concert audience were treated to a dazzling display, both in the colorful costuming and the excellence of the dancers' technique.

The program included flashy flamencos, classic boleros and a folk dances, all beautifully costumed, cleverly staged and lighted. Highlighting the entertaining evening were the staccato heel taps and Basque bounding of Federico Rey in such selections as "Zapateado", "Bolerito", and "Gypsy Rhythms".

Glamorous Pilar Gomez was a worthy partner to the artistic Rey. She floated through Granados' "Fandango de Candil" in her first solo selection, and her dark Spanish beauty, romantic grace and clicking castanets were featured in almost every number on the program.

MISS GOMEZ showed her early ballet and opera training to good advantage in the dramatic ballet sketch which closed the first half of the concert. The ballet, based on the etchings of the Spanish artist Goya, was beautifully presented, and represented a contrast to the predominantly gay and light-hearted dances on the remainder of the program.

A satire on the ballroom dances of the early 20th century provided a humorous interlude as Rey & Gomez gave their impressions of a 1910 dance team doing the tango, the maxixe, and the Mexican waltz. The Mexican dance suite of four folk dances was a series of quick changes, different in mood and tempo, and descriptive through the artistic ability of the dancers.

Silvio Masciarelli's piano accompaniment was first-rate, and he received well deserved applause for his two solo selections "Allegro de Concerto" by Granados, and "Variations on Argentinian Folk Themes" which the young Argentinian pianist had arranged himself.

Robert Parish, president of the Washington C. H. Community Concert Assn., spoke briefly at the opening of the concert. He welcomed the audience to the first concert of the tenth anniversary series of the local music group and extended his thanks to the workers and association members who had made the 1956-57 concert series possible.

"Last chance" reminder has been sent to members of the Hughey Post of the American Legion here who have not yet paid their dues for the coming year, telling them that they have only until noon on Dec. 1 to sign up before the 25-cent increase goes into effect.

The increase, the reminder points out, is to take care of the 25-cent increase in national dues voted at the last national convention.

The reminder was sent out through the post here by the state department headquarters of the Legion.

Joseph S. Deuschle, the state department adjutant, said in it that "all the members you can obtain between now and Dec. 1 will save your post money" and then asked: "Why not have a drive to get all of your 1956 members renewed before this deadline?"

The Hughey post, with 402 members now, already is 10 members above the quota of 352 set for this coming year.

When the annual member sign-up for 1957 closed on Nov. 11, the post had 392 members and since then 10 more have been added. The post received a citation from the state department of the Legion for its increase, and shared in the commendation for its part in raising the district from 13th to 4th place in the state for membership increase.

Russ Whited, commander of the post here, and the executive committee have picked up the state adjutant's suggestion and are now urging all members of the post who have not yet signed up for next year to get their checks in before Dec. 1.

Dues are now $5 a year here. Of this $2 stays with the post, $1.75 goes to the state department of the Legion and $1.25 to the national headquarters. Whited said and added that after Dec. 1 the national dues will be $1.50 a year while the post and state dues remain the same as now.

Meanwhile members of the post here are getting ready for an induction of new members as the highlight of next Monday night's regular post meeting.

Following the business session and induction formalities, there is to be a chili supper—for free.

Judge Case Steps Aside In Baldrige Damage Action

As a result of information given to Judge John P. Case by defense counsel in the case of Marie Patrick, administratrix of the estate of Irvin J. Patrick, against George S. Baldrige, Judge Case late Friday placed an entry on the court records, disqualifying himself in the case.

Ohio Chief Justice Carl V. Weygandt immediately assigned Judge

Ferd Bader, Cincinnati, a Hamilton County Common Pleas Court jurist, to preside in the case which has been set down for jury trial Dec. 4.

The plaintiff seeks $150,000 judgment from Baldrige in connection with the gunshot death of her husband last November.

THE ENTRY of disqualification points out that "there exists a belief on the part of the defendant that Judge Case should be disqualified from further presiding over any further proceedings in the case."

Judge Case then states in the entry; "that in order to maintain the highest ethical standards of bench and bar and in fairness to all parties of record in this cause, the undersigned Judge of the Common Pleas Court of Fayette County, Ohio, should voluntarily step aside and thereby eliminate an appearance of bias or prejudice, or speculation with respect thereto."

Ohio Water Co. To Serve Mahoning Suburban District

The Ohio Water Service Co., which serves Washington C. H., has signed a 20-year contract with the commissioners of Mahoning County to furnish water service to the recently created Charles Run Sewer District in Boardman Township, south of Youngstown.

The contract calls for Ohio Water Service to provide facilities including pipelines, booster station and a standpipe.

The newly created sewer district is in one of Youngstown's fastest-growing suburban areas. County Engineer Samuel Gould Jr., has estimated that a "tremendous boom" in the area will add 4,000 new homes in the section by 1958 and in crease the population by 17,000.

Ohio Water Service Company has been furnishing water service under a similar contract to an adjoining sewer district from a plant which also serves the city of Struthers and the village of Poland.

Two Men Facing Fighting Charges

George S. Joseph, 26, Mount Sterling, and Milo Morris, 32, Temple St., were taken into custody Friday night on charges of fighting at the Home Restaurant on Rose Ave.

The charge was filed by the owner, Mrs. Edith Snyder. The trouble occurred Friday, according to the affidavits.

Both men furnished $50 bond for appearance in Municipal Court early next week.

Marshall L. McGill, Tulsa, Okla., was arrested for making an improper turn at Court and Fayette Sts., where a "no turn" sign was erected.

Arraignment Set For Pen Guard

COLUMBUS (AP)—An Ohio Penitentiary guard was to be arraigned in municipal court today on a charge of illegally conveying drugs into the prison.

The charge against Olen E. Roshon, 54, of Basil, was made in an affidavit filed Friday by Warden Ralph W. Alvis.

Roshon was arrested Wednesday when he reported for work. Columbus police said they found 800 pills and capsules of dextroamphetamine in Roshon's lunch bucket.

Police said Roshon admitted smuggling the drugs to inmates but denied accepting money for it.

The first attempt to manufacture optical glass in the United States was in 1889, but it wasn't until 1915 that fine optical glass was made here in quantity.

Spanish Dance Duo Launches Concert Season

The fiery Spanish dance rhythms of Rey & Gomez were in sharp contrast Friday night to the winter weather outside the Washington High School auditorium.

However, a small but appreciative Community Concert audience were treated to a dazzling display, both in the colorful costuming and the excellence of the dancers' technique.

The program included flashy flamencos, classic boleros and a mix of folk dances, all beautifully costumed, cleverly staged and lighted. Highlighting the entertaining evening were the staccato heel taps and Basque bounding of Federico Rey in such selections as "Zapateado", "Bolero", and "Gypsy Rhythms".

Glamorous Pilar Gomez was a worthy partner to the artistic Rey. She floated through Granados' "Fandango de Candil" in her first solo selection, and her dark Spanish beauty, romantic grace and clicking castanets were featured in almost every number on the program.

MISS GOMEZ showed her early ballet and opera training to good advantage in the dramatic ballet sketch which closed the first half of the concert. The ballet, based on the etchings of the Spanish artist Goya, was beautifully presented, and represented a contrast to the predominantly gay and light-hearted dances on the remainder of the program.

A satire on the ballroom dances of the early 20th century provided a humorous interlude as Rey & Gomez gave their impressions of a 1910 dance team doing the tango, the maxixe, and the Mexican waltz. The Mexican dance suite of four folk dances was a series of quick changes, different in mood and tempo, and descriptive through the artistic ability of the dancers.

Silvio Masciarelli's piano accompaniment was first-rate, and he received well deserved applause for his two solo selections "Allegro de Concierto" by Granados, and "Variations on Argentinian Folk Themes" which the young Argentine pianist had arranged himself.

Robert Parish, president of the Washington C. H. Community Concert Assn., spoke briefly at the opening of the concert. He welcomed the audience to the first concert of the tenth anniversary series of the local music group and extended his thanks to the workers and association members who had made the 1956-57 concert series possible.
